DEPORT ALIENS, ARMISTICE DAY SPEAKER URGES

Poorman Tells Antiochans to Rid Community of Aliens

Pointing out that the taxpayers of the country are supporting too many individuals who have never claimed allegiance to the United States, Jack Poorman, former state commander of the American Legion, urged true Americans to rid themselves of the aliens who are taking the food from the mouths of legal American citizens and their children.

This was a high-note in his speech as part of Antioch's observance of Armistice Day in the Antioch Township high school Monday.

Mr. Poorman produced figures showing that "a startling number of aliens were not only depriving American citizens of work by holding employment, but also cluttering-up relief rolls in American communities."

Replacing Americans.
He said the native-born Americans were going without employment in many cases because aliens were on the payroll.

A great number of these aliens have been in the United States many years longer than the normal time required for citizenship; but they have never so much as taken out their first papers, Mr. Poorman revealed. He urged the immediate purging of relief rolls of aliens and to send them back to the country from which they came if they cannot produce citizenship papers at once.

Send Them Home
"Our country has been good enough for these aliens when it provides them a better living than they could get in their own country. And it is certainly long past time they were citizens of our country. If they are not now citizens they should be deported to the country where they belong and let that country worry about feeding and clothing them if they are on our relief rolls. Not one of these aliens has the right to remain in our communities," the speaker said.

The former Legion commander stressed the importance of citizenship and explained the meaning of Americanism to the audience.

The high school program was in charge of Dr. G. W. Jensen.

Practice

Dr. Homer Eugene Jamison, 77 years old, and for 42 years a practicing physician in the Millburn vicinity, one of the longest records in the county, died at 5 p. m. Saturday at the family home in Millburn.

His health forced Dr. Jamison to abandon active practice about two years ago, although he attended such cases as his health permitted.

Dr. Jamison was the eldest son of John and Matilda Jamison and was born August 6, 1858, at Brighton, Kenosha county, Wis. At the age of 9 he came with his parents to Libertyville, Ill., where he grew to manhood, receiving his early education in the rural schools and at Lake Forest in college. He spent all of his active years in the profession in this county except the first which was spent in Chicago. ## First Christmas Seal Sold in United States Twenty-Eight Years Ago

The first Christmas seal was not sold in the United States until 1907. In that year Jacob Rills, a social worker, received from his native Denmark a letter bearing an extra stamp of curious design. Inquiring, he found it was a Christmas seal. Later he wrote an article about it for the magazine, "Outlook."

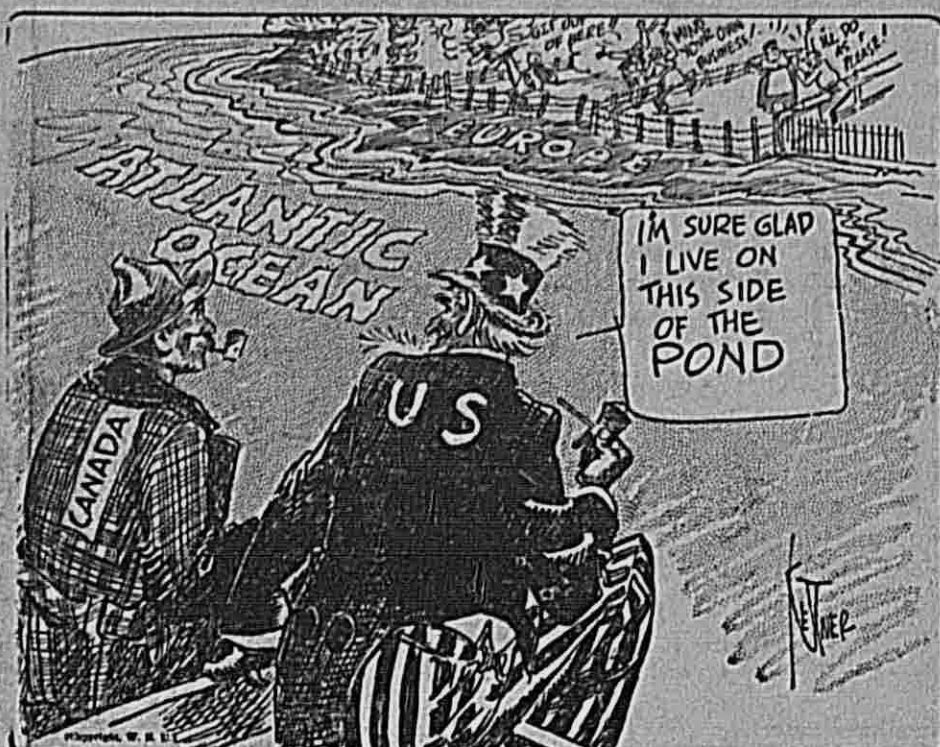

One of the magazine's readers, Miss Emily P. Blaisell of Wilmington, Delaware, was interested in a small tuberculosis hospital which was badly in need of funds. She saw immediately how she could adapt the tuberculosis seal idea to her own problem. With the aid of a local newspaper, she sponsored the first American seal and realized $3,000 for her hospital.

From then on the Christmas seal rapidly became a nationwide enterprise. Shahan said, in 1910 coming under the management of the National Tuberculosis Association. Since 1919 it has carried the red double-barred cross, international emblem of the crusade against tuberculosis.

SEQUOIT QUINTET MEETS RICHMOND TO OPEN SEASON

Antioch High Basketeers to Play First Games Friday,
Nov. 15

Those Sequoit basketeers from Antioch Township high school go on the warpath tomorrow (Friday) night in the high school gym to open the season with the Richmond high school aggregation.

The Antioch lights entertain the Allendale ponies in the evening's curtain raiser.

Comparative strength of the quintets cannot be determined this year, but Coach Childers believes he has assembled a formidable squad to match the tricks of the lads from west of the river. As the game is preliminary, what promises to be an interesting conference season with the addition of Lake Forest and Grant in the loop, the coach intends to put all the available material in the game.

The pivot position will find Paul Richey and Roger Brogan in the combination. The forwards will be chosen from Roger Thill, Marty McManus, Warren Miller and Albert Vykuta, while the guards are Russell Doolittle, Homer White, Jack Crandall, Stanley Lutson and Roger Brown.

The lightweight who will probably see service in the Allendale game are: center—Jack Riddell; forwards—Ambrose Griffith, Bernard Osmond, Charles Hawkins, and Wendell Nelson; guards—Bernard Schneider, Marvin Groebel, Ted Larson and George Hawkins.

The remaining conference schedule of home games is: Nov. 27, Warren; Dec. 6, Grant; Dec. 20, Elm; Jan. 14, Lake Forest; Jan. 24, Palatine; Feb. 14, Arlington Heights; Feb. 21, Leyden.

The Sequoits play six home games this season and go on the road for five on their conference schedule.

An interesting survey conducted during the first part of the current semester disclosed that an unusual number of students, talented in art, musical, and dramatic lines are enrolled and it is from this source that the entertainment is being planned, the announcement states.

FACE THE GORY FACTS

Few journalistic achievements of recent years have caused such a furor as the publication, by Readers' Digest, of J. C. Furnas' article, "—And Sudden Death."

This article, which describes the horror of automobile accidents in the most realistic and even nauseous terms, has been reprinted, in whole or in part, in a long list of newspapers and magazines throughout the country. It has become the basis for speeches by safety and law enforcement authorities. One Canadian province distributes copies of it to drivers, and a New York judge has started the practice of reading it to traffic violators appearing in his court.

Most important of all, perhaps, the article may have established a journalistic precedent. One of the country's large dailies recently announced that henceforth it would apply the "—And Sudden Death" method in reporting major traffic accidents. The descriptions will no longer be confined to medical terms and softened phrases. They will include factual word pictures of smashed skulls, of compound fractures, of spurting arteries, of crushed chests—all of the horrors that are part and parcel of the accidents which claim 35,000 lives a year in this country.

Newspapers large and small could well follow that example. The driver who reads simply that John Smith was killed when trying to make a corner at high speed often passes the news by with a minimum of thought. If he read, instead, that it was necessary to scrape John Smith's body from his smashed car, and that recognition was made possible only by examination of his dental work, he'd remember it.

It's time we faced the gory facts—time we all realized that the scene of an automobile accident can be as horrible as a battlefield. And it's time we remembered that automobiles have killed many more Americans than have all the wars of our history.

A NEW BRAND OF "LIBERTY"

Two minstrels who drew from their guitars music about "the downfall of the Soviet Union" and the "end of the world" as they wandered among collective farms in the Kiev district were sentenced to death in the Kiev Regional Court as counter-revolutionaries. Twenty-two others received prison terms of three to ten years. And that is what liberty and freedom amount to in Russia!

God save this country from the agitation and propaganda that would destroy our own Constitution, limit freedom of speech and press and establish a brand of "liberty" where life, death and property are subject to the whims of a political dictatorship.

BUTTON, BUTTON

You may remember the old game, "Button, Button, Who's Got the Button?" The person who got the "button" was the goat.

A modern craze of "button, button" has been going on of later years in the special and class tax movement.

One of the first and biggest "buttons" was sewed onto motorists when the gas tax went like a case of measles from coast to coast. The insurance industry has come in for its turn with various special taxes. The electric companies have them. There are special food and other taxes and many laws and proposals on up to the "share the wealth" plan which is just another class tax idea.

The trouble is that there are plenty of "buttons" to go around. Politicians' pockets are just full of them and they would rip them off their clothes, if necessary.

Maybe you haven't been passed a "button" yet with a class tax on your business, but you may get one any day.

Think it over the next time a tax is proposed that will hit only the other fellow.

THE LEAGUE WORRIES IL DUCE

Only a few months ago it was widely said that the League of Nations was a colossal failure. Today there seems to be an excellent chance that it will be able to do what seemed the impossible—stop Mussolini's African colonization ambitions.

Italian troops are still fighting in Ethiopia. Italian papers, which are merely the echoes of the dictator, still say that Mussolini's war-like spirit is unquelled. But, at Geneva, Italian spokesmen are talking in much softer voices. They seem genuinely worried.

Reason: Through League action, 50 nations have pledged themselves to stiff economic sanctions against Italy—and England, leader of the League in the present crisis, has refused to reduce its Mediterranean fleet, is sending still more ships to key points.

Armistice Day.

Armistice Day, which was celebrated on Wednesday, November 11, is commemoration of the Armistice which brought the conclusion of the World War. Armistice means a temporary truce in hostilities pending on final arrangements for peace. It was a great day in the history of the world, but in celebrating the anniversary of the great event it should not be done with the idea that the present period of peace is merely a truce during which the nations should prepare for another war. Emphasis should be laid upon peace rather than war, with the idea uppermost that the war which was brought to a close by the Armistice we celebrate was fought for the purpose of ending the wars.

Union Free High School

An Armistice Day program was presented at the school on Monday. The usual two minute period of silence was observed; Taps were sounded by Frank Rausch; Group Singing; The selection "What Price War" was read by Joseph Schlax; and June Pacey gave the reading "In Flanders Field." The School band played two numbers and the address was given by E. V. Ryall, Kenosha county agricultural agent. During the war Mr. Ryall was a second lieutenant in the First Division. His talk gave one of the main causes of war as economic aggression Italy is waging in Ethiopia. He spoke on Disarmament and said it would never be a success until all nations disarmed, and that the United States should build a strong national defense to keep from being the prey of any greedy nation.

Thrilly, if nations had to pay for wars when they are waged they would not be so anxious to go into war if industry and dollars were drafted as well as men; greedy profiteers would avoid wars.

Wilmot won the last foot ball game of the season Armistice afternoon when they played Union Grove at Wilmot, defeating the visitors 2-0. The points were made by Von Schlotterer when he blocked a kick in the third quarter.

The game was played on a field that was a sea of mud and mostly in Union Grove's territory but Wilmot was never able to push over their goal line even though they were once within a yard and several times over the fifteen yard line.

The close of the South Eastern Wisconsin season leaves Wilmot with a percentage of .600 being tied with East Troy. Waterford lead the league; Mukwonago, second; East Troy and Wilmot tied for third; Union Grove; Williams Bay and Rochester.

Travels Halfway Around

World on a Stretcher
Berkeley, Cal.—From the white iron bed in the University of California hospital, where he is waging a long battle against infantile paralysis, young Dr. Howard Carpenter said, "You've got to travel on a stretcher to learn how kind are all the nationalities of the world."

Stricken last July with the insidious disease in Teheran, Persia, where he had gone with his young wife to establish a practice, the young physician traveled half around the earth on a stretcher, and he claims the horizontal view of foreign lands is "something distinctly new."

He left the ancient Persian city and was carried to Bagdad by automobile, thence to Haifa by airplane. At Haifa his stretcher was hoisted from the deck of a small boat over the side of an American ship bound for Boston.

Doctor Carpenter is now able to move his arms—the first sign of recovery.

He and his wife plan a book on Persia, where Mrs. Carpenter's father formerly was an envoy.

Fierce Cat Gives In to

Kind Heart; Saves Bird

Boston.—Even the battle-scarred fur of Smutty, most feared cat in his neighborhood, hides a warm, kindly heart.

Stalking pigeons, one of his favorite sports, Smutty found an injured young starling. Forgetting his appetite for fowl, Smutty carefully carried the bird down the fire escape three flights to the office of his owner, Walter R. Gould.

Gould took the bird back to its nest, but Smutty was a persevering guardian and returned it to the office. Gould gave in and provided a box-nest.

For four weeks the neighbors have watched Smutty care for the bird, wondering when his cruel nature would assert itself. They still wonder. For now the bird is on the mend and will soon be flying normally.

Woman Who Died at 86

Never Cooked on Stove

Salem, Conn.—Hunters and fishermen mourn the passing of Jane Hurlburt, eighty-six, for many years known as the "hostess of Salem." Her home was the gathering place of sportsmen who relished the old-fashioned dishes she prepared over the flames of a colonial fireplace. She never owned a stove.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 10.

The Golden Text was "Lord who shall abide in the tabernacle who shall dwell in the body alive. He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart" (Psalms 15: 1-2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having resisted, stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness. And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God" (Ephesians 6: 13-17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In the Science of Genesis we read that He saw everything which He had made, and lo, behold, it was very good" (p. 525).

Bird Banding Old

Bird marking, either by small pieces of parchment or small discs, was practiced in the Eighteenth century.

Milestones of American Genius

Statue of Benjamin Franklin, erected in Boston, 1858; sculpture by Richard S. Greenough.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

WHEN Benjamin Franklin, at the age of seventy, reached France as America's first "goodwill ambassador," the Old World saw in his energetic, versatile and charming personality a symbol of the new nation.

He still seems representative of all that is best in American character. Statesman, diplomat, author, scientist, inventor and philosopher, Franklin excelled in each of these high callings. Little wonder, therefore, that his image is so deeply impressed on the national memory, and tangible memorials to his genius are found in almost every city of our land.

Born humbly in Boston, Franklin reached the heights of achievement and world-wide esteem in eighty-four years of devoted labors. His simple, lusty, fun-loving character touched the American imagination, so that the sight of his wise and deeply human face on some public square, in the tangle and turmoil of a modern city, is heart-warming—like meeting an old friend!

By the age of forty-two Franklin had won fame through his "Poor Richard's Almanac"—still quoted after two centuries! He retired to his avocation, scientific research, making his memorable experiments with electricity and developing the lightning rod, the Franklin stove, bifocal glasses and other inventions.

But his country's need soon drew him into political life. His place among the fathers of our Republic is clear from the fact that he was the only signer of all four of the great documents that launched the American Republic—the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Treaty of Alliance with France and the Treaty of Peace with England.

The memorial pictured above is one of scores throughout the country. It stands in Boston. The city in which Franklin rose from printer's devil to fame, Philadelphia, is the place of his burial. A marble slab marks his final resting place, which is a shrine revered by the nation which he helped to found.

Mrs. Mattie Edwards and son, Marc, and Mr. and Mrs. John Dickie and family of Forest Park were week-end guests at the D. B. Webb home.

A fitting tribute to the close of Dr. Homer E. Jamison's long and useful career, was the beautiful service held at the home with extension service in Masonic Hall through Tronson's amplifier Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Holden in his fitting remarks compared his life to that of the much loved Scottish country doctor, Dr. McClune, depicted in Ian McClaren's book, "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." Evan Davies, a nephew, sang, "Saved by Grace" and "Rock of Ages." The Masonic service was given by William Griggs, past master of Waukegan lodge No. 78. The pall bearers were Dr. John Foley, Dr. C. J. Foley, Dr. L. F. Waldman, Dr. John Jalmier of Waukegan, Dr. Tavior of Libertyville and Dr. Ross of Wauconda.

The Value of My Trip to the American Royal Livestock Show

(By John Turnock)

Not only do men out west grow big physically but they grow mentally as well. The greatness of Kansas City, its wide-awake Chamber of Commerce, and the vigor of the management of The Royal Livestock Show are equally inspiring to any young man who may visit that city during the American Royal.

I arrived there from our farm in southern Wisconsin, thinking all the way of the things I may expect to see. I experienced more than my expectations.

Even before I arrived in Kansas City, I could not help being impressed with the enormous amount of soil erosion that is continually going on in the state of Missouri, and if I can say anything in the way of constructive criticism that would bring action to stop soil losses in that state, I would feel that I have done my part to improve that phase of agriculture.

In that part of Missouri through which we traveled, farms were so badly eroded that it was beginning to show its effect on the general economic welfare of the farmer's family and the community. The buildings were in bad repair and unpainted. The crops must have been poor for I saw that the crop residues, such as corn stalks, were rather small. The fields were abandoned to weeds and brush and gullies.

As we crossed the Missouri river, it appeared very muddy and I realized then where the upper surface soils of that section were going.

Missouri must bend every effort to stop erosion by building dams, practicing different tillage methods, terracing, and seeding to sod.

In Kansas City, I was taken on a tour with other members of The Future Farmers of America. I could not resist marveling at the immensity of the city and the way it was planned. Business district, manufacturing section, residential estates, the stock yards—all were in their proper setting and nowhere was there any congestion.

Big men with big brains naturally do big things in a big way, and so it is in Kansas City, where city planning, big buildings and large enterprises are in evidence wherever you look. The way the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce entertained us, I believe, unequaled by any other city. Of course, home is home for all of us, wherever we may live, and we love our homes but we will always remember Kansas City and its hospitality.

I would like to meet the men who manage the American Royal. I imagine them to be men of vigor and courage. To put on a livestock exposition that draws exhibitors from all over America, and arrange at auctions that are in a class by themselves, had made the American Royal the outstanding institution that stands for agricultural progress in rural America.

The inspiration to do something to make my life worth while, has really come from my trip to the American Royal, and I hope that I may prove worthy of showing my appreciation in action for the betterment of agriculture.

MISS Harmony hastily jotted down the last line of her lesson plans for the day. Outside the rock-walled, one room schoolhouse she could hear the loud voices of the older boys playing dare-base and the chatter of the girls at hopscotch or mumbletype. They all came as early as they could, she thought rather fretfully, and stayed as late as they dared, though many of them had chores to do.

She glanced at her watch. Nine o'clock. Retching for the cracked old bell, she stepped to the door and rang it vigorously. A smile curved her lips as she watched them troop in. "Morning, Miss Harmony." "Morning, Miss Harmony." She held herself very erect, for she really wasn't very tall, was Miss Harmony Wright, teacher of Penrose school, District number nine.

She took her place behind the old-fashioned desk on the raised platform at one end of the room. At her signal all 19 of her pupils, from the smallest to the biggest, stood beside their desks, awkwardly saluted the big flag, correctly, primly hung behind her.

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States, and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, indivisible—!" Then grubby fingers hurriedly searched in the song books for "America" while Miss Harmony played the opening bars on the wheezy old organ. Her voice, clear as a bell, soared above their childish ones. Her bobbed head, with a bit here and there of grey, swayed slightly in time to the music.

She smiled at them as they sat down and began dragging out their books. Glancing at her watch again, Miss Harmony relaxed at her desk. Ten minutes before the first class. Charting classes for so many left little free time for the teacher. She was usually hearing recitations from one class while the rest studied. As many as eight subjects, all eight grades to recite during the day.

This was Miss Harmony's third year at Penrose. In much less time than that she had become acquainted with all its people. She knew to a jot the idiosyncrasies of its board members. Crusty old Mr. Stahl, who had never gone beyond the fifth grade himself and saw no particular reason why anyone else should. He was president of the board. Mr. Ray, the secretary, who was slightly deaf. Mrs. Woolford, whose opinions were ordered by those of her loutish husband.

Miss Harmony knew that the father of the Schall children was a bootlegger and that his rages occasionally found vent upon one or another of his five anemic offspring.

She knew them all, and fought to prevent the minds of the children from becoming as narrow and selfish as those of many of the parents.

Other people's children—Miss Harmony had envisioned no such future, though she fought for them and gave them of her heart. When Roy had so bravely enlisted during the passioned appeals of the war, and the backwash of hate and terror had swept across the ocean, they had made such different plans, such high-hearted plans. They were to have several children, for as she was made for motherhood, so was Roy for an understanding father. Their mutual fulfillment. A home and children of their own.

Though she had heard of female intuition there hadn't been the slightest doubt in her mind that Roy would come back. Roy, of the lopsided grin and thoughtful ways.

"Say, Harv," he had said, hesitantly, just before he got on the train that day, "look after mother, will you? She might worry quite a bit an' you could cheer her up."

Of course she would, she told him. Though she couldn't see anything to worry about. He was coming back and that's all there was to it!

They had clung together at parting, for after all, even if one is sure, being parted at all is heartbreak.

A little while after that Miss Harmony left her uncle's home to go to live with Roy's mother. They got along splendidly, even as today. Miss Harmony was working in an office then, but in spare hours she was always working on something for Roy. Sweater or socks or anything of their knitted kin. She attended meetings. Good-bye Broadway. Hello France. Over There. A little being with hair the merriest sort of red, she played and sang them all.

Then Roy's jolly, censor-marred letters stopped. True, they hadn't been coming very often because, after all, there was a war. She and Roy's mother thought of all the possibly happy excuses to account for that occurrence. For Miss Harmony the days became darker. If only one could know! It was the agony of uncertainty that preyed on mind and soul.

The blighting words "Killed in Action" were still etched on Miss Harmony's mind. At first she couldn't really mourn, for she had to think of Roy's mother. The two comforted and aided each other. Later, when she had time to think, it was almost more than she could bear.

The teaching had been her way out, her release from herself. And even with that, at times a nostalgia and heartache swept over her if she ever gave thought to what might have been.

Miss Harmony came awake. "Eighth grade reading! Ready! Stand! Pass!"

A gentle smile touched her lips again. Other people's children—

Part of Mysterious East
Through centuries each recording a fresh chapter in history, the Holy Land has remained part of the mysterious East. No land in the world, perhaps, offers a greater variety of infinite contrasts in climate, customs, modes of life, and religions. Within the small area of the Holy Land a legion of communities and sects dwell, making up what may be called a miniature cosmos.

Mysterious Imagery
No one seems able to solve the mystery of the numerous stone images on Easter Island. In the Pacific ocean some scientists believe them to be images of old-time gods, while others think they represent chiefs. Their age is estimated to be between 2,500 and 5,000 years.

Observe St. Stephen's Day
Since the Middle Ages peasants flock each year to Budapest to celebrate St. Stephen's day. At this festival dignitaries of church and state, attired in medieval splendor and gala uniforms, march in solemn procession through the city carrying the preserved right hand of St. Stephen in a golden shrine. The many-colored costumes of the parade make this march a fantastic display.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY FRANCES WEEDMAN

Director Hopkins Electric Cookery Institute

It may be a tiny tot, it may be the father of the tiny tot, or it may be both that your cooking efforts cater to; but, whoever it is, they will like custard. Plain or fancy, don't you find yourself rustling up a custard every few days so as to please some well-guided appetite? Of course you do, and perhaps, sometimes, it's only pure devotion that makes you bring out the old

Of course you do, and perhaps, sometimes, it's only pure devotion that makes you bring out the old double boiler and heat it up to set the stage properly for the making of the custard. Yes, making a soft custard is usually a bit of bother, but it is a health and appetite promoter; it is an indispensable delicacy—one which should be served in every home!

Taking the "Cuss" Out of Custard

Here's good news, then, for the custard makers of America—at last here's a way to take the "cuss" out of custard making! And three cheers for the new automatic electric range which really turns the trick. Perhaps you know, or perhaps you've guessed that it's the double boiler that's been completely given the "go-by." Now you can make custard in a saucepan right over the surface heat unit of the electric range without any worries at all, and without much stirring, too. It's a real cooking miracle which you can see and carry out right in your very own kitchen!

Yes, the same electric range which does most everything from cooking which is constantly maintained, heat which is consuming a minimum amount of electrical heat units. Therefore, the old double boiler method of regulating the heat when making a custard is no longer necessary.

Since custards are so good for children and grownups, too, since custards are so well liked by almost everyone, since custards may now be made with so little trouble the new electric range way, you'll want to treasure this miracle recipe.

Soft Custard

2 eggs 3 tablespoons sugar
2 cups milk 1 tablespoon vanilla
Mix eggs, milk, sugar, and vanilla thoroughly together. Pour into a saucepan. Place on surface unit. Cook on Low heat until custard thickens, stirring occasionally, during the cooking. If preferred, milk may first be scalded on Low heat and the eggs gradually beaten into the hot milk.

Canned Foods Should Be Stored in Groups According to Kinds

Convenience in storing, and later in using, canned foods can be increased by well-planned storage spaces. If canned foods are grouped they are easy to find and moving of one type of food to find another is eliminated. Moving of the jars or cans tends to loosen the seals and glass jars are often cracked by this practice, thus increasing the likelihood of spoilage. An ideal storage space is one that is cool, dry, ventilated and frostproof. If there is much light in the storage room the storage cabinet or shelves should be curtained since strong light not only bleaches colors but has some injurious effect on flavor and texture.

Improper Lighting Causes Nervousness

Many headaches, cases of nervousness, sleepiness and indigestion are found to be caused by eyestrain. Eyestrain in turn is caused in many instances by improper lighting in the home from both natural and artificial sources. Window areas should equal one-fourth that of the floor space for proper natural lighting, according to Viola Melnis of North Dakota state college. Draperies, curtains, shade, and screens cause loss of daylight and as much as 20 per cent may be shut out by dirty windows. Copper or bronze screens are best. Color of the walls and ceilings plays an important part in proper lighting and scientific tests have shown cream, white, ivory and pink have the best reflecting qualities. Artificial light loses much effectiveness unless properly shielded to diffuse the light about the room.

Would Draft Women For Military Service

While some nations today have their women's regiments the world has yet to see military engagements between enemies composed of women only. In all history, even among the savage tribes in far off corners of the world, it is the usual practice of the womenfolk to stay at home while the men go to war. Amelia Earhart Putnam's cure for war would reverse all this. She would "draft" women just as men are drafted. Actually rub their noses in trench mud, side by side with men," she says. In her opinion this would bring about the end of war because most of the "glamour of uniforms and honor would be taken out of war for the women."

Tapioca Variations

Many housewives have found that quick-cooking tapioca answers the question of a nourishing dessert at a small cost. Many delightful concoctions can be fashioned using tapioca cream as a base. Combine one-third cup of tapioca, a half cup sugar, quarter teaspoonful salt, one egg yolk and four cups milk. Remove from the fire and add beaten white of one egg and flavoring. Chill and serve as desired—plain or varied. Some tasteful variations are: Use two-thirds cup cracked peppermint candy as a substitute for the sugar in the cooking process and serve with a chocolate sauce; pour maple syrup over each serving and garnish with chopped nuts; or pour chocolate sauce over each portion and top with shredded coconut.

Novel Wall Paper Hanging

In many homes in this land the women have to do their own paper hanging. That they do a good job of it is attested by the brightness and neatness of the rooms of their homes, no matter how humble. Most wall paper has some kind of a design or stripe on it. For centuries the custom has been to run the stripes vertically up and down the wall. No one dared think of running the stripes horizontally along the walls of a room. But that "crime" now has been eliminated. Modern decorators have discovered that a really attractive effect can be achieved by putting striped paper on horizontally. Those who are planning on repapering a room this fall and are looking for something novel or different, here is an idea that will be especially harmonious in a room with modern furniture.

Colored Eyebrows Latest

Adapting another of the Indian's war paint ideas, women are wearing miniature plumes, that is, artificial eyebrows. Artificial eyebrows are now manufactured in all colors and shapes. They consist of real hair mounted on almost invisible tape and come in pairs with a vial of glue to fasten them on. According to the cosmetologists penciling the eyebrows, as well as shaving or plucking these forehead decorations, is out of date for the stylishly dressed woman.

A Tail-Piece

The harvest mouse is the only member of the mouse family that can grasp things with its tail in the same way as the monkey does. This kind of tail is called "prehensile." The harvest mouse is the one that makes nests among the cornstalks.

SILK LAME WRAP

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It's a modish gesture to top one's velvet evening gown with a wrap of sumptuous, scintillating silk lame. Only when seen in the original can the striking beauty of the model pictured be fully appreciated, for the actual coloring is superb. The glittering orange silk lame of the coat contrasts the black velvet to perfection. A flower of matching orange lame decorates the lapel with high artistry. The lines of this winsome wrap are "young" and flattering. The coat has a back swag-gar flare such as is characteristic of the newer fashions.

Araby Green Gloves Smart With Rust-Toned Tweeds

The growing emphasis for color in the general fashion picture gives emphasis to swank accessory shades that add a dashing color accent to the costume. For example, Araby green gloves and shoes provide a smart contrast to beige brown, or rust-toned tweeds; oxblood gloves and other accessories are the perfect complement to Oxford gray tailcoats; ginger brown or Hindu rust gloves and shoes add a dash of chic to the Chivegreen costume.

STYLE NOTES

Little fur capes have come into their own. Green and dark-red tones are outstanding. Dinner dress of velvet or metal in street length is exciting new theme. Crocheted chenille cardigan with velvet skirt is style news. Lame blouses are tailored and have jeweled buttons. Woolens patterned with beads make their appearance. The new crush-resistant velvet is a joy to possess. Toggles have high standing trimming.

HELPFUL HINTS

Milk bottles should always be carefully washed and dried before placing them in the refrigerator or ice box.

Shoulder straps of underthings can be prevented from always slipping off by sewing a short piece of tape to the inside of the dress on the shoulder seam and putting a snap fastener on the loose end of the tape and the shoulder strap.

All meals should be planned so as to use up left-overs.

To measure a cupful, tablespoonful or teaspoonful of any dry ingredient fill the utensil full and level off with a knife.

Equal parts of ammonia and spirits of turpentine will take paint out of clothing.

Sift together through flour sifter one-half cup flour, one-half cup white sugar and one-half teaspoon of powdered alum; put pint water and 15 drops of oil of cloves in double boiler, heat in the flour mixture and cook until clear and you have a fine library paste.

A lemon will yield nearly double the amount of juice if it is heated thoroughly before squeezing.

Fresh fruit stains can be removed from table linen by sponging with lemon juice and washing with hot water.

Vinegar wilts lettuce, so don't put on any vinegar-containing dressing until ready to serve the salad.

The cooking quality of potatoes is preserved better if they are stored at a temperature of around 60 degrees than when kept at a temperature of 40 degrees.

Before putting away the garden tools for the winter clean thoroughly, rub with oil or grease and store in a dry place.

Finger tips of gloves mend much easier if a thimble is first slipped into the digit to be mended.

Clean Up Garden in Fall; Destroy Insects

Cleaning up and plowing the garden this fall will put the soil in better shape for next year, and more important it will kill off large numbers of horned tomato worms, potato beetles, Mexican bean beetles, flea beetles and other insects that do considerable damage to garden crops. Burning plant refuse and trash will accomplish the same results as plowing under, but it is better soil practice to plow under because the organic matter is needed in the soil. It is a good plan to plow under an application of manure, too.

Some Don'ts For Parents

Nearly all child habits are formed in and around the home. These are not always formed through guidance and discipline by the parents but are often acquired through observation of their parents as well. Here are 10 "don'ts" recommended to parents by Dr. D. A. Thon of the Boston Habits Clinics for Children. Don't be over-solicitous; don't baby them too much; don't give them everything they demand; don't bribe; don't cheat; don't be discourteous; don't make meaningless threats; don't talk about them in their presence; don't be cold or repelling; and don't disagree over or discuss discipline problems before them.

Reminders for Forgetters

There is no need for the busy cook or housewife to run short on any kitchen necessity or to forget to make necessary purchases if she keeps on inexpensive pad of paper fastened to the kitchen cabinet or the kitchen wall in the busy corner. A pencil is fastened to or by it and whenever an impending shortage of any item is noticed it is jotted down. When ready for the trip to market the list of necessities is made up.

COLORS ARE COMING IN FASHION PARADE

Solemn Black of the Past Is Being Superseded.

The solemn procession of black which has marked the winter seasons during the past six or seven years for about 95 per cent of the women in America, is being almost magically superseded this fall by a gay parade of colors. The crisp autumn days have brought back to town the first contingent from the summer colonies, and Fifth and Park avenues are asparkle with new costumes in glowing colors which seek their inspiration from every source available to ingenious style authorities. Not in a decade have the smart lunching and dining places been so carefree or so aglow with rich vibrant colors.

The mere statement that color is back in the fashion picture is only part of the story. It's back as an emblem of a new spirit of hopefulness and courage, and it's being used in original ways to spell individuality, verve and renewed zest in living.

The new colors are cosmopolitan in character, designed to accommodate every daytime occasion. Red shades include ruddy berry colors and dusky blue-reds such as Lucetta. Rust tones range from the deep copper of Cherokee to the luster of Chinese lacquer exemplified by Pekin. Browns, such as Mogador, extend from the blue warmth of mink through the cool grayness of café-au-lait to the richness of dark chocolate. A grayed military green suggests fading leaves. It is called Autumn green. Bright greens are represented by Steeplechase and there is a deep forest shade called Woodland. Then, too, there is an important monastic gray named Krimmer, a rich Duge purple and the blues and crimsons reminiscent of the intrigue and power of the Renaissance.

Fabrics are of exceptional interest in their variety. The most important group is definitely irregular in number weaves with a marked hint of informality entirely consistent with a more colorful season.

Lost time is never found.

The liver in a human body is about seven times as large as necessary for the work the organ does.

TURKEY PROSPECT GOOD FOR RAISERS WHO FINISH BIRDS

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 13.—Turkey market prospects are favorable for Illinois raisers, according to the U. S. D. A. report, which states that 3 to 5 percent fewer farmers in the south Atlantic and far western states reported turkeys, while the decrease was nearly 10 percent in the other sections.

Heaviest reductions in numbers of turkeys are reported from the main producing states such as Texas and North Dakota. Increases are reported from Minnesota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, northern New England and several of the southeastern states. Illinois production is above last year, Alp believes.

However, this does not mean that turkeys with poor finish or other inferior qualities can be expected to bring good prices, Alp said. While the decrease in production is reported by the U. S. D. A. as approximately 13 percent below 1934, this is not considered sufficient to put a premium on inferior birds. On the other hand this decrease together with improved business conditions may bring turkey raisers a better holiday season for quality stock than they have enjoyed for several years, he added.

By culling out turkeys of poor finish and marketing only top quality specimens during the Thanksgiving season, growers will have at least three weeks in which to bring culled birds up to top finish for the Christmas and New Year's season. Thus they will be able to get good prices for a large percentage of the turkeys sold.

Decreases in production have been principally among farm flocks rather than among the large commercial flocks, according to the U. S. D. A. report, which states that 3 to 5 percent fewer farmers in the south Atlantic and far western states reported turkeys, while the decrease was nearly 10 percent in the other sections.

Poll of 10,000,000 to Test Popularity of New Deal

Individual ballots have been mailed to voters of Antioch and nearby communities in a new Literary Digest poll of 10,000,000 persons to ascertain the present popularity of the New Deal and should be distributed by the Post Office locally within a few days, according to advice received today from the magazine's publishers.

The Illinois returns in this new referendum will be tallied as a unit so they may be compared with the voting in other states. It is announced. The voting of the post card ballots is secret and no signature or other identification is required and the return postage is paid by the magazine. To guard against tampering and counterfeiting a specially manufactured cardboard is used for printing the ballot, according to the sponsors of the poll, and all spurious votes can be detected immediately and destroyed.

The ballot asks a yes or no answer to the question "Do you NOW approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt 'New Deal' to date?"

A similar poll to the same 10,000 persons was conducted in the spring of 1934, following the first year of the Roosevelt administration. Final returns then showed a vote of 61.15 percent for the New Deal to 38.85 percent against it.

Another question on the ballot in the coming referendum asks each voter how he voted in 1932 to ascertain if there has been any shift in political sentiment since the last Presidential election.

"Unkissed" Baroness to Seek Divorce From Baron

New York.—Emperor Franz Josef of Austria blessed their courtship—but even if the emperor were alive today he could not prevent the divorce of Baron Joseph von Cselany and his baroness Mary Louise de Blois.

This the baroness disclosed, revealing at the same time a story of life and love which began like the fairy story of the princess who found her Prince Charming—but ended without their "living happily ever after."

They met and loved in the glittering imperial court of Austria the baroness said. After the war the baron came to America. The baroness told of a story-book reunion in Grand Central station in New York in 1924. She was bound for Boston, he for Bridgeport—and he ran clear across the huge train floor when he spotted her. They embraced, later were married and lived in Philadelphia.

The story should end there—but it doesn't. When she sued for divorce, the baroness said:

"What a blunder that marriage was! He became cold. I charge him with cruelty, inhuman treatment and desertion. In the last two years I have never received a kiss from him."

Electric Wire Fatal to

Youth; City Pays $14,000

Santa Fe, N. M.—The city of Roswell, N. M., and the Southwestern Public Service company paid a $15,000 damage suit because a thirteen-year-old boy wanted to investigate a bird's nest atop a pole. The boy, Carl Spiva, was killed when he came in contact with high-tension wires which, attorneys for his family claim, were improperly insulated.

Origin of Name "Jayhawker"

The name "Jayhawker" originated in Kansas during the slavery and anti-slavery warfare and was applied to a few free state men who organized a system of retaliation against pro-slavery outrages. Governor Lane of Kansas in 1861 declared that "the people of Kansas were neither thieves, plunderers nor Jayhawkers."

Dressing Loss Heavy
Little more than half of a slaughtered beef ever arrives at the table as food. Examination of packing records reveals that approximately 30 percent of the average 1,000-pound steer is lost in dressing. About 550 pounds survives as table meat while 150 pounds of the remainder is converted into various by-products.

Blind Beggar Offers Town Gift; Jailed!

Lisbon.—Pedro de Moel, long a familiar figure throughout the cities and villages of Portugal as a blind beggar, is in jail charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, for he possesses excellent sight—and $50,000.

Pride in the little seaside resort where he was born caused his downfall.

He went to the local authorities and insisted that they should build a big luxury hotel as he had "seen" in other places. They laughed at him, whereupon he announced that he was prepared to contribute $50,000 toward the costs of the new hotel.

The authorities thanked him for his generous offer to the town, but at the same time they arrested him for having begged money for over 30 years under the pretense of blindness.

FIGHTS THREE DAYS WITH STORM AT SEA

Wealthy Sportsman Tells of Wild Experience.

New York.—A tale of horror in mid-ocean, of a three-day battle with a hurricane which disabled his yacht, was told by Albert H. G. Welsh, twenty-five, wealthy sportsman.

Welsh, formerly of Philadelphia and now a resident of Paris; Capt. Lars Larsen and three seamen who made up the crew of Welsh's yacht, La Dahama, arrived in New York on the ship which rescued them from their sinking craft, the Italian liner Rex.

The hurricane struck the La Dahama about 700 miles out of Bermuda, and the foremast of the schooner snapped in the 100-mile-an-hour gale. Welsh said:

"We saw the blow coming and reefed our sails. The foremast broke. For three days we ran before the hurricane with a bare pole.

"We couldn't use our auxiliary motor. The water rushed into our exhaust and through the loosened keel bolts."

Captain Larsen interrupted: "We stood up to our waists in water, pumping by hand and hailing out. The water came up to the floor boards."

La Dahama was equipped with a wireless receiving set, but had no sending apparatus. Said Welsh:

"It was nasty. We heard ships talking to each other and we couldn't tell them our predicament."

The liner Rex sighted them recently. Captain Larsen said:

"We thought it was an island at first—it looked so big. We were sure glad to see it. She put out a motor lifeboat. The water was smooth at the time."

The work of taking the men off the stricken vessel took but 50 minutes. Captain Larsen guessed the yacht might have stayed afloat two more days.

Welsh was en route to Cannes, France, to meet his wife when the hurricane struck. He had left Philadelphia on August 7 and had stopped in Bermuda. He said he would go to Europe on a liner.
